VOLUME 2 NUMBER 14

Pennington and Bergeron Join Together for a Safer Five Points Intersection

by D. A. Atkins

At the last meeting of the Romulus City Council, the issue of safety was brought forward by Councilmen Ellis Pennington and Pete Bergeron. It seems that, in the past, the number of accidents and near accidents at Five Points has been alarmingly high.

Pennington brought the issue to the Council's attention, and moved that a study be conducted regarding the possibility of putting a 'no right turn on red' sign on the corner of Goddard where Ozga intersects it. Bergeron supported the motion, and stated that he has been concerned about that intersection for some time, and had tried, previously, to get something accomplished, but could not get the cooperation he needed to do so.

Pennington told the Council and the residents in attendance that, if a car turns right from Goddard onto Ozga, and a school bus or other vehicle has the green light coming north on Huron River Drive, there could easily be a terrible accident, and someone could be killed. By the same token, if a car or school bus is on Grant Road, and a car turns north on Ozga, an accident, or even a fatality, could result.

The present light at Five Points is only a four-way light; Ozga has only a stop sign. There are times when it is difficult to decide when or if it is safe to turn onto Ozga, even when you have

"I have tried for a very long time to get something done there. I'll support the motion."

— Councilman "Pete" Bergeron

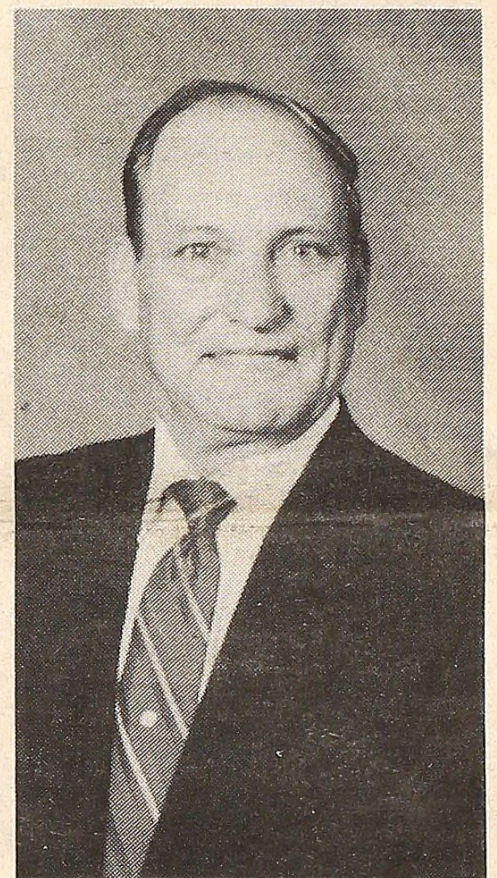

a green light. You literally take your life in your hands at this intersection. The fact that there is a bar on the southwest corner, a bar and bowling alley on the northwest corner, and heavy traffic in all directions at various times of the day, only compounds the problem.

Evidently, the other members of City Council agreed with Pennington and Bergeron; all voted in favor of the proposed study.

The other spot in the Downtown area that presents a traffic hazard is the corner of Goddard and Romaine. Goddard makes a rather sharp turn at that point, and if you are heading west on Goddard, especially in summer, you can't see Goddard's east-bound traffic, and some of the cars go straight through onto Romaine from Goddard without ever slowing down.

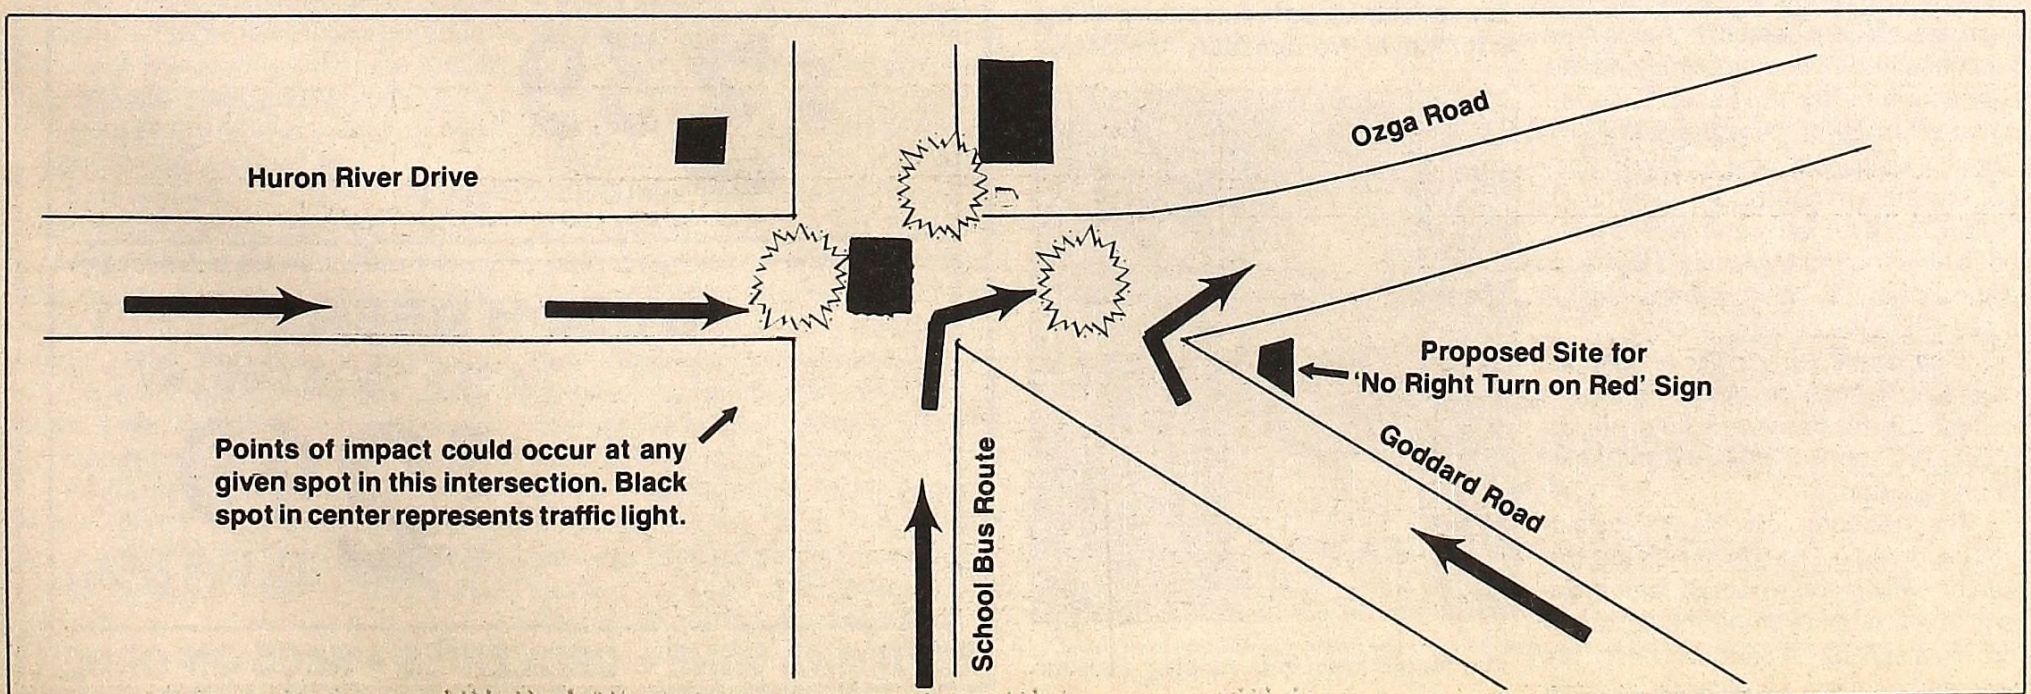

I discussed the matter with James Panos, Director of the Department of Public Works, on January 10, and he informed me that the matter would be looked into immediately. The possibility of a three-way stop at that intersection was suggested.

Thanks to Councilmen Pennington and Bergeron, the hazardous situation at Five Points has been brought to the attention of the Police Department and others who need to be made aware. Maybe something will be done in short order. □

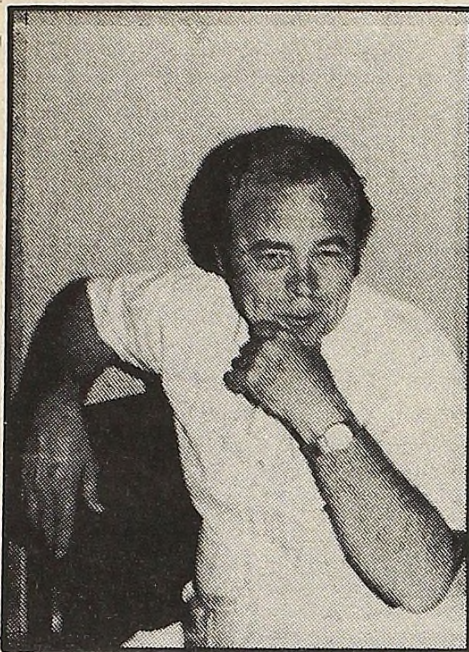

"Someday, someone is going to get killed at Five Points. I just hope it isn't a bus-load of school kids."

— Councilman Ellis Pennington

THE EDITOR'S OPINION

Things Do Get Done

by D. A. Atkins

I suppose that, when you're constantly on someone's back about a problem, like I usually am with the City Council and the Mayor, then praise should be given when the problem is solved.

Well, I would like to use the space in this issue's Editorial column to dispense some of that well-deserved praise to a few people who have, for the most part, done an outstanding job.

The City Council, as a whole, has done a super job getting things accomplished lately. More building projects are in the works, more road improvements are being made, a few new businesses are moving into town, and the new billion-dollar project at Wick and Merriman roads is about to get underway (finally), and these things are happening because the Council is working together instead of pulling apart.

The Mayor, Beverly McAnally, has done an excellent job of bringing these projects to the Council, after developing many of them herself (bringing new business into town and supplying the City with a better tax base). Because of her efforts, with the approval of City Council, we have a more balanced budget, and more minorities are being hired. In fact, more minority employees have been hired during McAnally's administration than any other administration since Romulus became a city.

In particular, I would like to congratulate Councilman Raspberry for the excellent job he has done filling in as Mayor Pro Tem while Mary Ann Banks is on vacation.

The Treasurer, Jim Napiorkowski, also is doing a fine job at helping the senior citizens take care of their property taxes. It isn't something he has to do; it's a service he performs out of his love and concern for older people. He deserves congratulations for his efficient handling of the Treasurer's Office, as well.

Debbie Dick has done an outstanding job with the Recreation Department (and I understand that the little bird I've seen flying around her may be a stork).

In the Building Department, Dave Paul and his staff have been making a great effort toward getting codes enforced, buildings torn down, and, in general, just seeing that things are done properly.

I also want to congratulate School Board Secretary Dan Bales on his selection as Person of the Year by the Romulus Chamber of Commerce. No one more deserving could have won the award. Dan has given of himself to this community for many years, and is well respected by those who know him. I have found that, when the man tells you something, you can believe him.

There are, of course, many others who deserve recognition and congratulations for their accomplishments, but the space allotted for one newspaper article isn't sufficient to name them all. In their own hearts and minds, however, they know who they are, and sooner or later I will get to them, too. □

A Great Man Remembered by Millions

by Randy Gear

As a young child growing up in the North during the late '50s and early '60s, I was not exposed to separate wash rooms, drinking fountains, lunch counters, or schools.

So when the evening news would report about marches, demonstrations, and confrontations with local law-enforcement agencies, I asked myself why these things were taking place, and why so many people were being hurt, jailed, or even killed.

As a lot of us can remember, the late '50s and early '60s brought about a great deal of change throughout both our nation and the world, and a large portion of it took place in our southern states. It was during this time that a new and outstanding leader came to the forefront of the movement for change — Martin Luther King, Jr.

King was born in 1929 in Atlanta, and lived in a two-story frame house located on Auburn Avenue. His mother, Mrs. Alberta King, was a former teacher in the Atlanta school system; his father, Martin Luther King, Sr., was the Pastor of Ebenezer Baptist Church. He had an older sister, Christine, and a younger brother, Alfred Daniel.

King entered Booker T. Washington High School in Atlanta, and graduated at the age of 15. He then entered Morehouse College, where he studied the ministry.

At an early age, King took an interest in the teachings of a Hindu nationalist and spiritual leader, Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi (called Mahatma Gandhi), whose philosophy of non-violence, 'passive resistance,' deeply impressed King, and had a great influence on the civil rights movement.

After his graduation, King married Coretta Scott King at the age of 24. They had four children: Bernice, Dexter, Yolanda, and Martin III.

King started his ministry at Dexter Avenue Baptist Church in the downtown area of Montgomery, Alabama, where he preached from September 1, 1954, to January 31, 1960. During all of his sermons, King spoke of loving our fellow man, and not hating anyone.

In Montgomery, blacks were not allowed to ride in the front of buses; they could only sit in the rear. This was the law, and those who did not obey it were removed from the bus and jailed.

On December 1, 1955, a lady named Mrs. Rosa Parks refused to give up her front seat. She was then arrested, fingerprinted, and taken off to jail for violation of the Segregation Act. This action set the stage for King and his followers. They wanted that law stricken from the books, and united in a boycott effort to achieve their goal. Blacks would not ride the public transportation systems or shop at the stores of the Downtown merchants, thus placing the City's business at a standstill. Eventually, the segregation law was overturned, but it was a long, hard struggle for everyone involved.

King led marches, sit-ins, and jail-ins, gave speeches in Washington, D.C., and focused on the Nation's poor and homeless. He received a Nobel Peace Prize in 1964. He met several times with Presidents John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson to work on National civil rights bills.

In 1968, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., found himself in the city of Memphis, Tennessee, fighting for the rights of sanitation workers. On April 4, he was assassinated as he left his second-floor room at the Lorraine Motel.

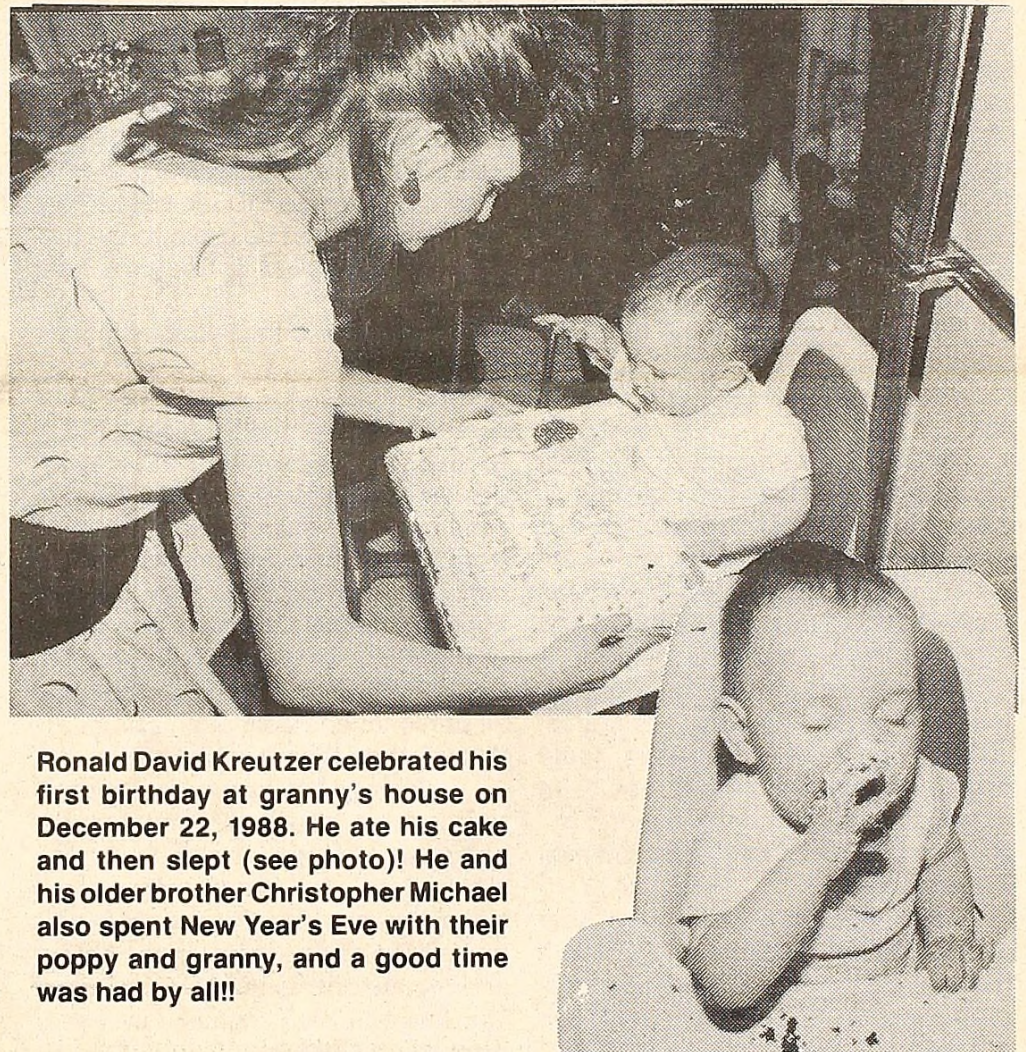

When I heard of this news, I was only a 16-year-old junior at Romulus High School. I could not understand why such a good man had to die.

The next day, it was announced that there would be a memorial service at Eastern Michigan University. The service took place in a lecture hall, which was filled to capacity, with no standing room.

No one was talking, and everyone appeared stunned or grief-stricken, but we were all there for the same reason. I didn't know if my being there helped or if anyone really noticed, but it was just my way of saying good-bye to one of the outstanding leaders of our time.

"History has thrust me into this position. It would be both immoral and a sign of ingratitude if I did not face my moral responsibility to do what I can in this struggle." — Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. □

by James Kosteva, State Representative,
37th District

House Approves Welfare Reduction Act

House lawmakers have approved the Welfare Incentive Reduction Act, aimed at reducing welfare dependency by providing medical care coverage, day-care, and transportation assistance to people who leave public assistance for paid employment. Communities will be encouraged to respond to the continuing need for child care and transportation through matching funds for local efforts.

Lawmakers Approve Muskrat Dinner Bill

The House has approved a bill that would allow Michigan nonprofit organizations to serve muskrat meat and other wild game, providing that they warn consumers that the game has not been inspected by State or Federal health officials. The bill would require groups selling or serving muskrat meat to post a sign in the dining area that states: "Consumer beware. The wild game served at this facility has not been subject to state or federal inspection." Bill Would Prohibit Corporal Punishment in Schools

The House has approved a bill that would prohibit teachers and officials in Michigan schools from using corporal punishment. The measure would permit the "reasonable physical restraint" of a student who poses a threat to people or property. The legislation also would require school boards to develop alternatives to corporal punishment. Measures Would Protect Athletes

House lawmakers have passed several bills that would set National standards for legal agreements between athletes and agents seeking to represent them. The bills would regulate the contracts signed between professional athletes and sports agents and require specific provisions in sports-agents' contracts signed in Michigan.

House Passes AIDS Package

The House has passed a package of bills which provide guidelines for the testing and treatment of victims of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) and persons with whom they may have sexual or needle-sharing contact. Under the bills, all new inmates entering Michigan's prison system would be tested for AIDS. The bills also require the Department of Public Health to notify victims of sexual assault if the person convicted of the crime is infected with AIDS.

Lawmakers Approve Day-Care Bills

Three zoning bills that would allow group and family day-care homes to operate in residential neighborhoods across the State have been passed by House lawmakers. The bills would allow all licensed homes to continue operating and give legal status to new homes that operate at least 1,500 feet from another day-care home. Local zoning ordinances in many communities now ban day-care homes in residential areas.

Bills Require Autopsies

The House has approved two bills intended to aid research into the causes and circumstances of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS). The legislation would require an autopsy and investigation by the county medical examiner in all cases where SIDS is suspected. The results would be given to the parents and to the State's Department of Health.

New Law Refines Legal Emancipation of Minors

The Legislature has approved measures that would make it more difficult for irresponsible parents to 'throw away' adolescent children through the process of legal emancipation. The bills would allow the courts to emancipate minors, removing them from the parents' responsibility, only if the minor child requested it and could prove to the court that he or she could manage all personal and economic affairs.

Truck Safety Bills Become Law

A package of House bills designed to reduce truck accidents and increase safety on Michigan roads have been signed into law. Among other provisions, the new laws will restrict trucks to the right lanes except when passing and require covers on all loose loads. The law will also require lower rear bumpers on trucks.

Legislature Passes Storage-Tank Clean-Up Bills

The Legislature has passed three bills that would regulate and correct releases from Michigan's leaking storage tanks. The bills would require owners and operators of underground storage tanks to report all confirmed releases from a tank to the Department of Natural Resources within 24 hours. The measures also would hold tank owners responsible for the first $10,000 in clean-up costs.

Letters to the Editor

To whom it may concern:

We would like to thank all the people who helped us when our home burned out on Dec. 12, 1988. We couldn't have made it without all their help.

Thank you, and may God bless you all.

The Adkins Family
(Paul Jr., Kathy, Kelly,
Paul III, and David)

Dear Mr. Atkins,

On Wed., Dec. 28, 1988 as I was just about to leave the house, I received a phone call, and was advised to obtain a copy of The Romulus News because there was an article in it about me. No other information was given, and I assumed the worst.

I walked into the store, spotted my photo on the front page, snatched a copy and was convinced my suspicions were confirmed.

While making my "get-away" I opened up the paper and was overwhelmed with emotion to discover that I had been selected as The Romulus News "Man of the Year." There are no words which can express how grateful I am to receive such a wonderful honor. At the risk of emulating an Academy Award winner, I must thank those D.P.W. employees who cooperated with me and performed outstanding jobs for the City. I would also like to thank the City Council for their support, and most of all I would like to thank Mayor McAnally for appointing me, believing in me, and supporting me, even in the face of much opposition and controversy.

In closing, it is said in Ec. 9:10 "Whatsoever your hand finds to do, do it with all your might." I believe those words and try to live by them, and with this as our motto, we can continue to better serve the Citizens, along with Mayor McAnally and City Council, and to make Romulus an even more desirable Community for both residential and industrial development.

Thank you and this Community for making this year so wonderful for me and my family.

Yours Truly,
James J. Panos

Dear Mr. Atkins:

I'm writing concerning the issue of teen suicides. This problem can be and probably is a very serious problem to consider. I have gotten the impression that, in spite of the very real problems confronting our youth, the thought of suicide is not foremost on their minds.

As I am sure you will recall, some years ago, anorexia and bulimia were the prime results of many teenage problems. Have you noticed that these two problems have dwindled considerably? What could possibly be the reason for this?

Much as it behooves me to say so, our society has the uncanny knack for picking up on trends and fads depicting the times. Our society also has a habit of playing "overkill". This is when something is stressed upon so often, that you can't help but hear it again and again.

If the constant mentioning of suicide doesn't have any impact on our teens, then I would be surprised. Rather than stressing suicide, society should be stressing self-esteem and morality. Young people can pick up on the good as well as the bad.

It's time to start teaching these young people sound values and instilling positive thinking during their formative years. This may not be the entire answer to teen suicide, but it certainly wouldn't hurt to try it.

Carol Caverly □

IT'S THE LAW

by Murray A. Duncan, Jr., Attorney

One of the most common ways for citizens to come into contact with the legal system is to serve as jurors. This article will outline the jury process in our state courts.

As a general rule, the determination of the competency of a juror is left to the discretion of the trial judge. A party in a court case is not entitled to any particular jury or jurors. A party is entitled to an impartial jury.

In Michigan, a criminal statute provides that it shall be a misdemeanor for any public official to discriminate on the basis of race against a juror in the selection, drawing, or summoning process.

Prospective jurors are required to complete a Juror Personal history Questionnaire, which attorneys are allowed to examine. The attorneys may, if permitted by the court, ask questions of prospective jurors. If the court handles the examination, then the attorneys can suggest questions to be put forth by the judge. As a general rule, any person who is a registered voter has the opportunity to be selected to serve on a jury.

In two weeks, I will discuss the jury process once a juror gets to court.

If you have a legal question that you would like answered, you may send your question to my office and I will attempt to answer your question in this paper's next issue. Questions should be mailed to: Murray A. Duncan, Jr., 10000 South Wayne Road, Romulus, Michigan 48174. □

HERE'S TO YOUR HEALTH

by J. H. Barden, D.O.

The menopause is a difficult time most women have to pass through. The term menopause means stopping of menses or periods. The average of menopause in the United States is 49. It usually happens between the ages of 40 and 60. Usually six months without a period means the patient has gone through menopause.

There are many complications of menopause; these include: abdominal bloating, foot swelling, headaches, cyclic emotional disturbances, breast shrinkage, bladder changes, osteoporosis, and the well-known 'hot flashes.' It is important to remember that there is a physical cause of these symptoms. They are not all 'mental.'

These hot flashes usually consist of a sudden flushing and profuse perspiration or sweating. Patients claim that hot flashes are uncomfortable and embarrassing. These hot flashes are experienced for over a year by 82% of women. Other studies show that hot flashes last for five years in 25-85% of women. The individual hot flashes usually last from four to ten minutes.

The complications of menopause are associated with a reduction in the blood level of estrogen (premarin) at the menopause. Most of these complications can be reduced or eliminated with the use of estrogen supplements. However, estrogen is a mixed blessing with some unwanted side effects. Studies have shown that there is a slight increase in frequency of carcinoma (cancer) of the breast and uterine endometrium in those patients who take supplemental estrogen. Estrogen has several beneficial effects — it lowers the risk of heart disease, lessens the complications of menopause, and reduces osteoporosis, the thinning of bones which takes place with aging. This frequently results in hip fractures in older females. An orthopedic surgeon I know states, "The risk of death from hip fracture is much greater than the slightly increased risk of cancer of the breast or uterus." Also, estrogen causes a slight increase in gall bladder disease, high blood pressure and blood clots. If high blood pressure develops it can be controlled with medication.

It has been shown that the use of Provera in conjunction with estrogen reduces but doesn't eliminate the increased risk of cancer.

Discuss any problems of menopause with your personal physician. The use of estrogen in menopause is a sophisticated, complicated decision requiring much thought and judgment.

Oral Health

by Rhonda J. Hennessy, D.D.S.

The theme of my last few articles has been "Don't give a cavity a fighting chance"; here are a few more tips on how to win the battle against cavities.

We can fight tooth decay both at the dentist's office (with sealants and dental fluorides) and at home. Monitoring the types of food we eat, using proper brushing and flossing techniques, and using the proper toothbrush are all good preventatives. One thing that can be confusing is the vast number of products that flood the market, claiming to fight cavities.

Tooth decay results from a chemical reaction between oral bacteria and food debris that is allowed to remain in your mouth. The bacteria produce acids that eat away at the tooth enamel. This chain of events begins soon after you eat, and continues for at least 20 minutes. The saliva in your mouth has minerals in it that can help the re-mineralization of weak tooth enamel, and so acts as a natural cleansing agent. This is why the types of foods you eat are important. Sticky, chewy candies and other foods that remain in the crevices of your teeth (i.e., Fruit Roll-Ups, caramels, Gummy Bears, etc.) prevent the saliva from performing its rinsing and re-mineralization functions.

Brushing daily interrupts the decay process, and using the right tools is important. The American Dental Association recommends using a toothbrush with soft, rounded, or polished bristles to perform the following recommended brushing technique:

1. Hold brush at a 45° angle, pointing toward the gum line. Use a gentle, circular motion — almost a wiggle.
2. Use short, angled strokes to clean the outer surface of the back teeth.
3. Keep brushing with short, angled strokes to remove plaque from the inner surfaces of your back teeth.
4. Scrub the chewing surfaces of your back teeth with the brush held flat.
5. Tilt your toothbrush and use a circular motion to clean the inner surfaces of your front teeth.

SCHOOL SPORTS 'N' NEWS

Sports Update

by Fred Coleman, Romulus Schools Athletic Director

Because of the Holidays, the sports columns will be a little shorter and not as complete as usual. We would like to apologize for this but, with coaches and our normal writers on vacation, it is hard to obtain all of the correct information. □

J.V. Basketball

by Fred Coleman

Behind second-year coach Ron Harper, the Junior Varsity team is struggling through a very potent schedule, but coming up just short on points to gain victories. Playing well for the young Eagles are sophomores Torrey Mills, Abu Hamilton, Rodney Halimon, Chris Brown, and John Chambers, with Abu and Rodney doing an excellent job on the boards and Chris, John, and Torrey carrying most of the scoring for the team.

"We have had a very powerful schedule to this point, and we are showing improvement with each game," said Coach Harper. "If we keep working hard, the victories will begin to come, and these guys work real hard. We should begin to improve that record (1-8) in the next few games." □

J.V. Volleyball

by Fred Coleman

After finishing second in the Christmas Tournament, the Junior Varsity Volleyball team took a well-deserved vacation until Wednesday evening, when they took on League-rival Ypsilanti. Led by the solid play of Angie Slawinski, Susan Molenda, and Jenny McClure, they managed to put away Ypsi by scores of 15-2, 12-15, and 15-6.

The J.V. Eagles then took their 11-1 record on a break, and will resume play in a home game against Ann Arbor Huron at 6 p.m. Wednesday, January 11, in the High School gymnasium. □

Varsity Wrestling

by Fred Coleman

The Varsity Grapplers improved their dual-meet record to 10-1 (their only loss coming against the State's second-ranked Birmingham Brother Rice by three points), and their tournament finishes to one first-place finish, two second-place finishes, and one third-place finish.

Senior Paul Nowicki (17-0) and junior Tim Kosikowski (21-0) are leading the way for this young, very-powerful team.

Other individual records and performances were not available in time for this issue's deadline, but more information will be available in the next issue's coverage. □

Varsity Basketball

by Fred Coleman

Behind third-year coach Dan Henry, the Varsity Eagles have moved their record to 4-5 (2-1 in the League).

A loss and a victory in the Lansing Eastern Christmas Tournament were followed by the team's excellent showing against State-power Highland Park on Tuesday evening.

"We battled Traverse City all the way to the end, but made some errors late that cost us that ball game (69-63)," said Coach Henry, "but we came back the next night and played excellently against Ann Arbor Pioneer for the victory (68-62)."

Virgil Davis took control of the floor while scoring 13 points, but had a lot of help from Arol Trinity in the back court, also. The scoring was balanced for this contest, with five players scoring in the double figures.

"This is the kind of effort we need from this team to be very successful this year," added Coach Henry. "We do not have a dominant player. What we have is an excellent group of unselfish players who can perform, at times, like championship material."

In their latest effort, the Eagles encountered a very talented team from Highland Park. The Polar Bears fast broke themselves into a very quick 12-point advantage, and gradually, over the first two and a half quarters, built that lead to 22 points; but then Virgil and Arol got hot hands scoring and Eric Lightsey and Grayam Scott took over the boards with the help of junior Larry Perkins.

Virgil's three-point shots and some excellent assists by Arol Trinity brought the Eagles back from their 22-point deficit to a 56-54 score with five minutes left. Unfortunately, it was then Highland Park's turn to get the hot hand, scoring seven unanswered points to increase their lead to 63-54. The Eagles then had to start fouling, hoping for missed free throws. It didn't happen, as the Polar Bears made 20 of 28 from the line and ended up winning the game by a 68-62 final score.

The next home game for the Eagles will be on January 17 against Taylor Truman. □

Varsity Volleyball

by Fred Coleman

The Varsity Volleyball team improved its record to 8-2-3 (2-0 in the South Central Conference League) with a victory over Ypsilanti by scores of 13-15, 15-3, 15-7, 12-15, and 15-7.

"We have been off for seven days for the holidays, and it sure showed tonight," stated Coach Gail Coleman. "We are a much better team than we displayed this evening, but we managed to pull out the victory and that's what is most important as far as our quest for the League Championship goes."

The solid performances of Chris Stratton and Michele Scarrow helped the Eagles to fight off the Braves. Also contributing fine defensive plays were Jennifer Daniel and Mikki DiBenedetto.

The Eagles finished third in their Christmas Tournament, losing to Champion Trenton in the semifinals by scores of 15-11 and 15-9.

"We made some mistakes early in the day that cost us a game, or I really believe we would have been playing for the Championship," added Coleman. "I truly believe we should have been second and, given a little bit better serving, we could have even won this tournament."

The Varsity Eagles have 10 young ladies who all contribute in a fine team effort, as predicted by their coach. "We have different people carrying the load in each game, and that's important. If somebody is having a bad day, it just seems that somebody else takes over for her."

"No doubt, Michele Scarrow has been our most consistent player, missing her first serve for the year (57-for-58) on Wednesday. She's blocking and hitting very well, also. If we can get others to become a little more consistent, I really believe this is a League Championship team and, possibly, even a team to be reckoned with come State Tournament time."

The team's most recent competition was a 12-team tournament in Oscoda on January 7, where the girls played tremendously well and finished in second place. The first-place finisher, Pinconning, is currently ranked fifth in the State. Coach Coleman was exceptionally proud of her team, saying, "The team just played super. The girls put forth a total-group effort, and did an outstanding job."

The Eagles will host Ann Arbor Huron January 11, continuing toward their goal of finishing first in the League. The next tournament for these young ladies is on Saturday, January 14, at Gibraltar Carlson High School. □

Jazz Band Plays for Seniors

by Mary Clark

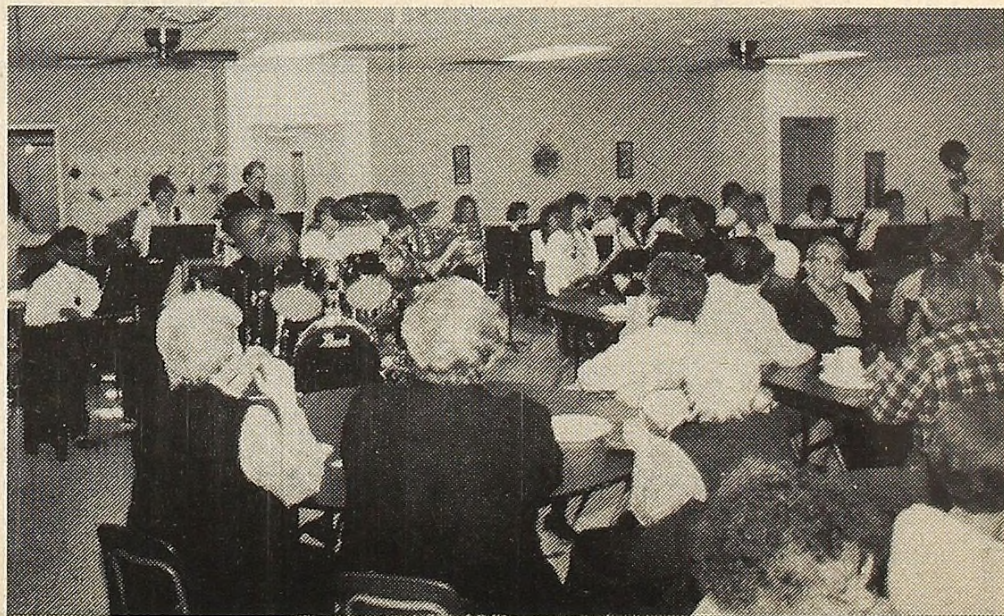

Under the direction of Band Director Henry James, the Romulus High School Jazz Band exceeded its usual excellence at its performance for senior citizens at the Romulus Senior Center Tuesday, January 10. The selection of songs presented included "Just the Way You Are," "Swing Street," "Sudden Sam," "Route 66," and "Gringo." Several of the band members performed solos, demonstrating such skill that it was a tribute to their great talent and dedicated practice, as well as the superior direction of Mr. James.

Everyone present really enjoyed the performance, and some of the seniors were even dancing. Afterward, lunch was served to the band members.

The program was coordinated by a student in the High School's Leadership Class, Michele Byrd; she was assisted in her efforts by Sylvia Harris, Joan Dubanik, and Jamie Trailer. The Leadership Class instructor, Mr. Birmingham, had directed each person in the class to select and implement a special project in order to determine his or her semester grade; this performance was the project Michele chose. (It looked like an 'A' performance by all concerned, to me!)

On behalf of all of the seniors, I would like to say thank you to the band for taking the time to entertain us. I would also like to extend my personal thanks to one particular member of the group, Christine Martell, for dedicating her solo performances to me. It was quite a pleasant surprise, and was certainly appreciated. □

THE SENIOR CLASS

by Mary Clark

Thanks go to Barbara Schultz, Jean Smith, and Margaret Wilson for contributing information to this issue's "Senior Class" news.

Happy New Year!

I hope that everybody's Holiday Season was as full of joy as mine was. Spending Christmas Eve with my family (all of them!) was the best Christmas present I could have had.

News from the Towers

Romulus Towers residents want to extend their special thanks to the Romulus Holiday Inn for the delicious dinner and entertainment provided on New Year's Eve. The residents also were grateful to the Holiday Inn for being so considerate as to offer transportation to the event. The generosity of the people there was a shining example of the holiday sense of giving.

Towers Manager Jean Smith did, indeed, have a White Christmas. During her trip to Utah, where she was visiting her daughter's family, that area got 12 inches of snow. Jean says that she could enjoy it because she didn't have to shovel it.

This month's birthday dinner will be held on January 12 at 5 p.m. I would like to send best wishes to the following Towers residents on their January birthdays: Ola Pennington, Josephine Ocelvany, Reba DeRosier, E. Jean Rice, Wesley Matthews, Diane Klobucher, Johanna Laskey, Marian Berlinn, and Walter Mientkiewicz.

On Monday, January 16, there will be a Martin Luther King Day celebration at 1 p.m. Refreshments will be served, and all residents are welcome.

A luscious spaghetti luncheon will be served Tuesday, January 24, at 12 p.m. in the Multi-Purpose Room.

The following church services and Bible classes are held at the Towers, and all residents are welcome to attend: Sundays — non-denominational services are held from 9 to 9:30 a.m. in the Multi-Purpose Room (Nelson Pearson, Minister); Wednesdays — study fellowship classes are held at 9 a.m. in the card room (Rev. Landis of the United Methodist Church, Conductor); Thursdays — Bible classes are held from 10 to 11 a.m. in the card room (Joe Hickman, Minister); second Friday of each month — St. Aloysius has services at 6 p.m. in the card room.

News from the Senior Center

The Senior Center van will be taking senior citizens on various outings throughout January. On January 20, a shopping trip to Meijer and Target is scheduled, and a visit to the town of Plymouth to view the Ice Sculptures is planned for January 13. The cost of these trips is only $1.50; bring money for your own lunch.

The chefs at the Center would like seniors to join them for a potluck dinner on Tuesday, January 17, at 5 p.m. They will be making a huge pot of home-made chili mild enough for all to enjoy. Please come in and sign up so they know how much to make, and let us know what you will be bringing to eat.

There are a number of Romulus seniors who think they're getting younger. It may not be a reversal of aging, but it's definitely a reversal of feeling old. Every Thursday at 10 a.m. at the Center, seniors can enjoy each other's company as they exercise. Exercising slows down the aging process. This activity stimulates formation of new bone tissue, and improves circulation, muscle strength, and flexibility. So, please come and join in. What you prevent needs no cure! □

And We Were Lucky

by Tom Shamanski

The mid-morning August sun foretold another miserably hot day, deep in the core of last summer's heat, but we were lucky — we were in my sister's air-conditioned Camaro. We were my sister, Judy; my mother; my four-year-old daughter, Meredith; my two-year-old, Joe; and me. Heading north on I-75, we were going to Lake Orion to visit my Aunt Stel, who was the most amazing, yet simple; hopeful, yet cynical; and honest... yes, above all, honest... individual I've known. At 78, Aunt Stel was dying of cancer; we knew this might be our last time together.

Soon, the sun's steady rays and the air conditioner's constant drone lulled Joe and Meredith to sleep. My mother, sister, and I were quiet, absorbed in thoughts and memories of Aunt Stel. I gazed out the passenger window with half-closed eyes, the passing view melting into streams of colors.

My mind smiled. I was four years old and riding with Aunt Stel in the back seat of my parents' 1945 Plymouth. My mom and dad were up front, and we were going to a picnic. Laughter filled the car and, somehow, no one remembers why now, the talk turned to Walt Disney's Dumbo. Within minutes, Aunt Stel had teased me into believing if I stepped out of the car, my ears would grow like Dumbo's, and I would soar to the treetops "and beyond, if I wanted!" Arriving at the park, my innocent mind was undecided whether to remain in the car forever, or jump out, sprout gigantic ears, and fly to the "beyond, if I wanted!" I chose to fly, and was disappointed when my ears remained unchanged, but proud of my choice.

I was pulled back to our air-controlled cocoon as Joe began coughing in his sleep. He coughed four or five times, repositioned his small frame, and settled again in sleep. My eyes returned to the outside; my heart returned to Aunt Stel. I remembered her stories. We were lucky, as Aunt Stel was unsurpassed as the family glue with her stories. At any get-together, everyone would press her into familiar family tales. When asked for a specific incident, she'd laugh and say, "Oh, yes, how did that go?"; then, she'd tell us. Aunt Stel had a magical and wonderful way of weaving tales, so that, no matter how often you heard them, you always craved more. And, if you were in the story, it was the summit of your day; she made your heart laugh.

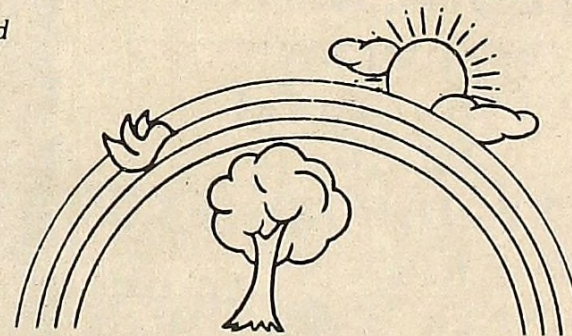

We had pulled off I-75, and were approaching Lake Orion. Judy mentioned something about needing gas. The kids were waking, stretching, and wondering where we were. We'll be at Aunt Stel's soon, I told them. For the last time, we became silent. I thought of Uncle Ed,

Cab Fares Set

by D. A. Atkins

The Romulus City Council has set licensing fees and cab fares for the taxicabs operating in the City.

Previously, there was a great deal of turmoil every time a cab operator wanted to obtain a license. He or she would have to apply, and then go before City Council for approval.

With the new ordinance, all the operator has to do is make application at the City Clerk's office, and the license is issued there.

The annual fee is $40, and the duplicate fee is $10.

For the residents' benefit, the fees are now partially controlled, as far as cab fares are concerned. Now, it will cost you $1.10 to get inside the cab, plus $1.40 for the first mile and $1.40 for each additional mile. If you call a cab to come out and pick you up, the minimum fee is $3.

These rates apply only to taxicabs, and not to limousine services.

This action of the City Council and Clerk should make the taxi business better for everyone involved. □

Romulus Gets Chinese (Food, That Is)

by D. A. Atkins

Here in Romulus, we have 'sit-down restaurants,' McDonald's, sub shops, pizza parlors galore, and a few other places where you can stimulate your taste buds, yet one type of restaurant we have, heretofore, lacked, is one that serves Chinese cuisine. But now there's good news for residents who love egg rolls, almond chicken, fried rice, and other Oriental goodies. A Chinese carry-out restaurant has just opened in Romulus. Who can pass something like that up? Not anyone in my family.

Even though The China Chef just opened on Monday, it already is doing good business. It has a complete menu, and it is all carry-out (that's nice — you can eat all that scrumptious food in the comfort of your own home). The owner, Peter Choi, told me that, if you give him a call first, he can have most orders ready for pickup within 15 minutes. The other good thing about this restaurant, according to Mr. Choi, is that nothing has been frozen; all of the food is made fresh right on the premises.

Peter Choi was born in Canton, China, but lived in and went to school in Hong Kong. He migrated to the United States in 1972, and lived in California for a very short while. He is married, and he and his wife, Ann, have two sons, Donald and Edwin, who were born in Michigan. His wife Ann is also from China.

Until recently, Peter Choi owned another Chinese-food restaurant, The Ten Yen, at Wayne Road and Ann Arbor Trail. He moved to Romulus because of the demand for Chinese food in this area, and he should do well here. Heck, my family, alone, should keep his business going strong.

The China Chef is located in the Wayneport Plaza at Wayne and Wick roads. You will find its complete menu elsewhere in this paper. Why not stop by and welcome this new business to Romulus? We have needed a Chinese restaurant for a long time; now that we have one, we should patronize it.

By the way, there is no delivery service at the present. Each order is prepared as it is called in, so it should be ready by the time you get there. □

J.T. Auto

by D. A. Atkins

Jim Shelton is well known in the City for many reasons. He is always pleasant (until recently, he was the president of the most helpful C.B. organization ever to be in Romulus, the Quik Helpers C.B. Club), and he also owns J.T. Auto, which is located at the bend in Goddard Road in Downtown Romulus.

Jim has a reputation of getting to the bottom of automobile problems in a hurry, and not charging you an arm and a leg for doing it, either. In fact, the one thing I noticed about him, right off, was his honesty.

The first time I took one of my vehicles to him, he told me it would cost me more money to fix it than it was worth, and he didn't want to take my money. Now, at that time, he didn't know me from Adam, and he could just as easily have taken me to the cleaners. He didn't, though, and I have always had a great deal of respect for him because of that one incident.

It isn't hard to tell he is an excellent mechanic — just look at the cars parked in his lot for repairs. Jim does major motor overhauls, front ends, mufflers, and just about anything else you need. If he can't do it, he'll tell you where you can get it done for less money.

Jim Shelton is also an avid fan of Bluegrass music. You'll have a hard time catching him after April because he goes off, almost every weekend, to a Bluegrass festival somewhere in the United States.

At times, I wonder if he doesn't love his Bluegrass even more than he does his wife. Guess what. She sometimes wonders the same thing, although she is always with him at the festivals.

Jim Shelton has been at the same location for many years, and has built a great reputation. Stop in and see him when your car troubles you. □

Monarch Cleaners

by D. A. Atkins

They say that the tenure of a business tells you a lot about its quality, and I'm sure its true when it comes to Monarch Cleaners, which has been in this town for just about as long as I can remember.

Through the years, Monarch has built an incredible clientele in both the industrial world and the private sector. Clean clothes, you say? Wash them? Okay. Press them? Sure. Starch them? No problem. Drycleaning? Certainly!

Most of the school uniforms you see worn by Romulus students have been cleaned by Monarch; many of the local business-people's clothes have been done there, as well.

The people who work there have always been kind and helpful, and are never in a hurry to rush you off because you're taking too much of their time. I have only talked to the owner a couple of times, but he, also, seems like a nice guy. Why is he hardly ever around when I try to contact him? It's because he is out delivering clean clothes to one person, or picking up the dirty clothes of another. Now, that is a boss after my own heart — one that is not afraid to work.

Monarch Cleaners is located near Five Points, in the same section of buildings as Bud's T.V. and the Polka-Dot Party Pantry. Want your clothes cleaned, and cleaned right? See the people at Monarch. □

Send us information about your business. We will be happy to put it in this section as space permits. There is no fee and pictures would be appreciated. (No phone calls, please.)

This routine of brushing should be followed at least twice a day for two to three minutes. (You should also gently brush your tongue — this helps keep your breath fresh.)

Another good cavity preventative is a dental sealant. A dental sealant is a clear plastic material that is applied to the chewing surfaces of the back teeth. The sealant acts as a barrier, filling in the grooves and crevices to protect the teeth from plaque and acids that cause decay. Children receive the greatest benefit from having sealants applied to their teeth, especially newly erupted permanent teeth. The application of sealants does not mean that the teeth no longer need daily brushing, and they still have to be examined regularly at check-up time. The sealant must be reapplied every two to five years.

What about fluoride? The discovery, 50 years ago, that adding one part per million of fluoride to drinking water reduced the incidence of cavities by 60% or more, was one of the greatest public-health discoveries ever. Slightly more than half of the U.S. water supply is now fluoridated, and tooth decay continues to decrease. □

The Best Approach to Health

This fifth of a series of articles on Chiropractic medicine is reprinted from Pain, Headaches, & Stress by Chester A. Wilk, D.C., P.C., and was submitted by Dan Elwart, D.C.

The health-care field has four major types of treatments it can use to restore and maintain health. These are the surgical, pharmaceutical (drugs), psychological and biomechanical treatments. Proper health care demands that all four of these treatments be objectively evaluated and considered for their individual merit in the care of different ailments, and then the use of the most conservative treatment in a manner consistent with safety and effectiveness.

The above statement addresses four important issues. These are:

- Conservative care. One should not use a 'sledge hammer' if a fly swatter is appropriate. That would be overkill.
- Drugs and surgery. These should only be considered if natural and drugless methods could not do at least as well. Reliable statistics showing drug reactions, complications of unnecessary surgery, extended hospital stay due to drug reactions, and the overutilization of drugs, mandate a more conservative 'total' approach toward health care.¹
- Effectiveness. This raises a two-fold issue. First, the United States Office of Public Health, in 1986, concluded, after an extensive 13-year study, that two-thirds of the 'over-the-counter' drugs do not fulfill the promoters' claims, and so we must differentiate between misleading 'promotion' and accurate 'education' on drugs. Second, we must realize that most 'biomechanically' caused ailments are more likely to respond to 'biomechanical' treatments — not to medical treatments.²
- Total consideration of all health care disciplines. Ignoring any of the four major treatments would be like removing a vital leg from a stool. The stool would become unstable, and so would the health care. All four treatments deserve consideration on their merits.

1. Dr. Virgil Slee, Commission on Professional & Hospital Activities — 4,000,000 unnecessary operations are performed annually, with an annual estimated 48,000 deaths caused by drugs. Johns Hopkins Study, Leighton Cluff, M.D., 1965 — 14% of extended hospital stays are due to drug reactions.
2. Expert testimony, Per Freitag, M.D., Ph.D., U.S. District Court, Northern Illinois Eastern Division, No. 76 C 3777, May, 1987. □

Stel's husband, an engineer on the Grand Trunk Railroad, who died in 1965 at the age of 61. Ed was a mountain of a man, but gentle as an angel's caress. When they were younger, Stel and Ed and my parents often played cards at our house. As the evening slipped by, Ed would protest to Stel, "Come on, Stel, let's go. I've got to get my rest." Finally, they would leave. Years after Ed's death, after painful memories had dimmed, Stel would drive by the cemetery where Ed was buried and, looking in his direction, say, "Well, Ed, are you getting your rest, now?"

Judy maneuvered the Camaro into a slot at the Senior apartments where Stel had been living the last two years. The kids, fresh from their naps, were in rambunctious moods, contrasting those of the grown-ups. As we slowly walked the hall to Stel's apartment, I thought of her colorful reputation with kids. She had two daughters who had married, and had herds of kids themselves. Through the years, Stel had become W.C. Field-ish, and offered no excuses. She was honest, and that's the way it was. Her dilemma was the kids didn't care what Grandma said, they loved her and loved being around her, anyway. I worried how she would react to Joe, whom she would be seeing for the first time. Judy knocked on the door, a buzzer sounded, and we went in. Aunt Stel was sitting in a large chair by a window; a machine filling her with oxygen sat nearby on the floor. And she was smiling. "Come in, come in; sit down, please." Then, focusing on Joe, her raspy voice softened and she said, "And this is Joe, wonderful Joe. He's beautiful, Tom, just beautiful." She removed her glasses and wiped her eyes. Then, smiling again, "Now, tell me everything you know!" One month later, Aunt Stel died.

A few weeks ago, I got a letter from her daughter, my cousin, Vonnice. She wrote how she missed her mother and added, "The two constants in her life were, first, she was honest . . . everyone knew where they stood with her, and, second, she made you laugh. What better epitaph?" None, indeed. And Aunt Stel earned it, and we knew her, and we were lucky. □
